E: hmorton.queenslea@gmail.com

BRIEF DESCRIPTION OF AWARD RECIPIENT
Helen Morton was the Western Australian Minister for Mental Health; Disability Services; Child Protection between 14 December 2010 - 31 March 2016. BRIEF DESCRIPTION

Mental Health First Aid (MHFA) Australia is a national, not-for-profit, health promotion charity focused on mental health first aid training and research.

Its mission is to provide high quality, evidence-based mental health first aid education to everyone.

Its vision is a community where everyone has the first aid skills to support people with mental health problems.

APPLYING PROGRAM: Nanko-walun Porlar Nomawi: Wellbeing for Children and Families

ORGANISATION: Child and Adolescent Mental Health Service (CAMHS), SA

ADDRESS: 1/55 King William Road
Adelaide, SA 5006

CONTACT PERSON: Liz Prowse
E: liz.prowse@sa.gov.au

BRIEF DESCRIPTION OF THE PROGRAM
This program for the Aboriginal community in rural Murray Bridge encompasses the following dimensions of a social and emotional wellbeing framework:
• Cultural connection and identity
• Social connection and wellbeing
• Emotional wellbeing
• Physical wellbeing
• Family relationships and kinship networks
• Spiritual wellbeing and connection to country

Initial assessment covers all aspects from a family perspective and leads to the development of a care plan negotiated with parents. If serious mental health concerns are identified then co-work with local CAMHS is undertaken. A key element for the program is working closely the Aboriginal community and with partner agencies such as Child Protection and Education, as well as non-government organisations. Outreach work across the region frequently occurs and “yarning circles” are run in schools and a local children's centre. Aboriginal Community Education Officers and School Counsellors are closely involved with the program in identifying referrals and co-working.

DESCRIPTION OF THE ORGANISATION
Located in rural SA in Murray Bridge, the programme is annually funded to provide culturally appropriate CAMHS services to the Aboriginal community with a priority on children at risk of engagement with the child protection system. Workers are strongly engaged with the local Aboriginal community and connection with culture is a major focus. The programme has a coordinator and 2 wellbeing workers, all are currently Aboriginal workers. The programme has around 45 individual clients, but also works with families, partner agencies and community groups. The service and its workers are a highly valued part of the community.

The programme is funded by the Commonwealth and NSW Health Departments.

BACKGROUND DESCRIPTION OF ORGANISATION

This model incorporates a Day Program (3 months), Residential Rehabilitation (6 months) and 1 year Aftercare programme. KYH is significant in the drug and alcohol treatment services sector as it is one of the very few residential rehabilitation services available for women to enter with their children. MENTAL HEALTH PROMOTION OR MENTAL ILLNESS PREVENTION

TheMHS AWARD: WINNER

APPLYING PROJECT: Into the Light: An Arabic Resource on Psychological Health
إلى النور: الموارد العربية للصحة النفسية

ORGANISATION: Being - Mental Health And Wellbeing Consumer Advisory Group

CONTACT PERSON: Adla Abushanab
E: info@being.org.au

BRIEF DESCRIPTION OF THE SERVICE
Into the Light project was a partnership between Being, Metro Assist, Transcultural Mental Health Centre and Liverpool Migrant Resource Centre. The project developed a three part video resource that aims to engage the Arabic-speaking communities in NSW on psychological health, distress and seeking help. According to the 2011 census, Arabic is the most popular language other than English to be spoken at home in NSW (2.7% of NSW population). Anecdotally we know that many Arabic-speaking people have experienced psychological distress, it is not well understood, is heavily stigmatised within communities and few Arabic-speaking people currently access mental health support services in NSW. In order to respond to these issues a resource was required that was relevant, useful and culturally appropriate for Arabic-speaking communities in NSW. The development of the videos was led by the Arabic speaking communities and produced in Arabic with English subtitles.

BACKGROUND DESCRIPTION OF ORGANISATION
Being is the independent, state-wide peak organisation for people with a lived experience of mental illness (consumers) in NSW. We work with consumers to achieve and support systemic change. Being's core funding of $581,361 is provided by the Mental Health Commission of NSW and project funding comes from a range of sources. Being has 9 staff, 4 casual Committee Representatives and 2 volunteers.

THE TOM TRAUER EVALUATION AND RESEARCH AWARD

TheMHS Award: Winner

Applying Research: Excellence and Innovation in Suicide Prevention

Researcher: Fiona Shand

Organisation: Black Dog Institute

Address: Hospital Rd
Randwick, NSW 2042

Contact Person: Luke Duffy
E: l.duffy@blackdog.org.au

Brief Description of Research

Fiona Shand PhD is a Senior Research Fellow/Research Fellow/Postdoctoral Research Fellow at the Black Dog Institute, UNSW

This research commenced in 2013, iBobbly is the trial of the world’s first suicide prevention app designed especially for use by Indigenous people. The app uses evidence-based therapies proven to reduce suicidal thinking and was developed in partnership with the local Kimberly WA Indigenous community, including Alive and Kicking Goals Suicide Prevention Program, to ensure that the content was culturally relevant and relatable for Indigenous young people. The app format leaps two of the major hurdles to help seeking – perceived stigma and geographical isolation. Once the app is downloaded, users don’t need ongoing internet access and the program is password protected, maintaining confidentiality if the technology is shared with others. The Kimberly based pilot study conducted using Randomised Controlled Trial methodology demonstrated favourable results. A large-scale evaluation is currently being rolled out across several Australian states.

Background Description of Organisation

Black Dog Institute was founded in 2002 and is internationally recognised as a pioneer in the identification, prevention and treatment of mental illness, and the promotion of wellbeing. We aim to improve the lives of people affected by mental illness through the rapid translation of high quality research into improved clinical treatments, increased accessibility to mental health services and delivery of long-term public health solutions. Our unique approach incorporates clinical services with our cutting-edge research, our health professional training and community education programs. We combine expertise in clinical management with innovative research to develop new, and more effective strategies for people living with mental illness. Funded primarily by competitive grants and philanthropy, our primary areas of mental health research and treatment include: depression, bipolar disorder, post-traumatic stress disorder (PTSD), anxiety, workplace mental health, adolescents and young people, suicide prevention, e-mental health, and positive psychology and wellbeing.
EARLY CAREER RESEARCH AWARD for EXCELLENCE

TheMHS AWARD WINNER

APPLYING RESEARCH: Psychological Motivations and Outcomes of Female Genital Cosmetic Surgery

RESEARCHER: Gemma Sharp

INSTITUTE: Curtin University

ADDRESS: GPO Box U1987
Perth, WA 6845

CONTACT PERSON: Gemma Sharp
E: gemma.sharp@curtin.edu.au

BRIEF DESCRIPTION OF RESEARCH
Gemma Sharp PhD completed her doctorate in Clinical Psychology at Flinders University in Adelaide, South Australia in 2016, before moving to Perth, Western Australia where she is a Psychological Researcher and Clinical Psychologist Registrar at Curtin University.

The demand for female genital cosmetic surgery (FGCS) has undergone a rapid increase recently. FGCS is not medically indicated and long-term safety and effectiveness data are lacking. The research showed that sociocultural factors, in particular, idealised media representations of female genitals were powerful influences on women’s attitudes toward their genital appearance and their decisions to undergo labiaplasty. I also found that a short video could effectively improve women’s knowledge of normal female genital appearance and thus the video could potentially be used in clinical settings as well as with younger girls in sexual education classes. The research findings also showed that women do not experience the post-surgical improvements in psychological and sexual well-being that they may have expected. These results could help medical professionals identify women with unrealistic expectations who may benefit more from a psychological therapy approach, which is the focus of my proposed future research.

BACKGROUND DESCRIPTION OF ORGANISATION
This research was conducted at the Flinders University School of Psychology in Adelaide, South Australia. The School of Psychology is one of the leading schools of psychology in Australia which employs over 40 academic and professional staff members. The research in the School was rated as above world standard in the most recent Excellence in Research for Australia (ERA) evaluation. The School’s research strengths are broadly classified into clinical/health psychology, social psychology, applied cognitive psychology, development across the lifespan and psychophysiology. The School also has a number of specialist clinics offering services to address psychological issues such as eating disorders, trauma and sleep problems.

APPLYING RESEARCH PROJECT:

Smooth Sailing: The design and delivery of an online school-based mental health service for adolescents

RESEARCHER:

Bridianne O’Dea

ORGANISATION:

Black Dog Institute, Faculty Of Medicine, University Of New South Wales

ADDRESS:

Hospital Road, Prince of Wales Hospital
Randwick, NSW 2031

CONTACT PERSON:

Bridianne O’Dea
E: b.odea@blackdog.org.au

BRIEF DESCRIPTION OF THE RESEARCH

Bridianne O’Dea PhD is currently a Research Fellow at the Black Dog Institute, University of New South Wales.

The Smooth Sailing Project involves the design, build, delivery, and evaluation of an online, stepped-care mental health service for high school youth. This “virtual clinic” allows young people’s mental health to be screened, treated, and monitored, entirely within the school context. This new type of service model is based on allocating students to a “step” as determined by their symptom severity. The service then delivers a personalised treatment plan which incorporates internet interventions where appropriate, so that face-to-face psychological care is reserved for those most in need. Outcomes include improved detection of mental health issues among youth, increased help-seeking behaviour, and reduced symptoms. This project is the first of its kind. It was designed in partnership with young people, their parents, teachers, and school counsellors. It is currently being trialled in five high schools, and is being offered to an additional 24 schools throughout 2017 and 2018.

BACKGROUND DESCRIPTION OF ORGANISATION

The Black Dog Institute, founded in 2002, is internationally recognised as a pioneer in the identification, prevention and treatment of mental illness. Based at Prince of Wales Hospital Sydney, Black Dog is a translational medical research institute that aims to reduce the incidence of mental illness and the stigma around it, to actively reduce suicide rates and empower everyone to live the most mentally healthy lives possible. The Institute aims to improve the lives of people affected by mental illness through the rapid translation of high quality research into improved clinical treatments, increased accessibility to mental health services and delivery of long-term public health solutions. The Institute adopts a unique approach that incorporates clinical services with their cutting-edge research, health professional training and community education programs. The Institute combines expertise in clinical management with innovative research to develop new, and more effective strategies for people living with mental illness.
The MENTAL HEALTH SERVICE

MEDIA AWARDS

of

Australian and New Zealand

2017

BACKGROUND

The Mental Health Services Media Awards program commenced in 1998. It is designed to encourage accurate and sensitive media coverage of mental health issues, to break down stigma and to educate the community about mental health. There are three categories, as follows:

1. Text Journalism
2. Sound/Vision Journalism
3. Special Media Achievement
   (For an entry with a regional/rural/community or other focus from the above two categories)

In 2017 there were 42 entries received for the media categories.

Understanding that journalists work within limitations, and acknowledging the diversity of media outlets and their impact and reach, entries are assessed against the following criteria:

- Evidence that the story has been well researched and is factually accurate.
- The content of the story is sufficiently complete and balanced to impart a broad understanding of the issues.
- The overall style and journalistic character of the entry are engaging for the target audience
- Guidelines for reporting of mental health matters are taken into account:
  - Australia - Mindframe guidelines
  - New Zealand - Suicide Prevention
  - Like Minds, Like Mine website

These awards are made possible by generous grants from the Australian Government and the New Zealand Government in recognition of the importance it gives to excellence in media reporting of mental health issues.

ENTRY: Understanding the Hidden Suicide Problem among Women in Medicine
WINNER: Rebecca Kamm
ORGANISATION: Broadly (VICE Media)
ADDRESS: Melbourne, VIC
CONTACT PERSON: Rebecca Kamm
E: rebecca.kamm@vice.com

DESCRIPTION OF AWARD WINNING STORY
This story was published on Broadly.vice.com on 7th December 2016. It also ran on VICE Australia (vice.com). It was written shortly after the publication of a study highlighting the disproportionately high rate of suicide by women in medicine in Australia. The study, by Deakin University's Dr Allison Milner, found that female nurses take their lives at a rate nearly four times higher than working women in the general population. This finding was reported by news titles, but without the depth afforded by feature-length journalism. The aim was to go deeper, and ask women in medicine for their experiences and their understanding of the issue. The article was received extraordinarily well by our female readership. It circulated widely among young women at medical school, with many writing in to express how glad they were the issue was being discussed in depth.

The MHS AWARD:  WINNER
ENTRY:  Understanding & Destigmatizing Mental Illness
JOURNALIST:  Lynne Malcolm
ORGANISATION:  ABC Radio National
ADDRESS:  Sydney NSW
CONTACT:  Lynne Malcolm
E: malcolm.lynne@abc.net.au

DESCRIPTION OF ENTRY
This entry is a series of three episodes which provide understanding, personal insights and potential pathways to recovery from mental ill health. The aim of each is to reduce stigma around mental illness in order to offer support and understanding to those affected. In the first program, "Emotional CPR" we meet a leading psychiatrist with his own lived experience who aims to shift the paradigm of mental health services, to empower people in their own recovery using his technique called emotional CPR approach. The second part of the entry is "The psychology of hoarding". We hear from people who hoard, and the support network treating those troubled by this behaviour. Thirdly, "Dissociation & coping with Trauma" explores the highly stigmatised Dissociative Identity Disorder through the eyes of one woman with lived experience and a psychiatrist who specialises in its treatment.

TheMHS AWARD: JOINT WINNER – RURAL FOCUS

ENTRY TITLE: Down on the Farm - mental health and rural families in the south

WINNER: Yvonne O’Hara
Southern Rural Life

ADDRESS: Otago, New Zealand

CONTACT PERSON: Yvonne O’Hara
E: yvonne.ohara@alliedpress.co.nz

DESCRIPTION OF ENTRY
I was awarded a $10,000 grant from the Mental Health Foundation in 2015, which I used to research and write a series of stories about the impact mental distress had on rural families. “Down on the Farm - mental health and rural families in the south” was published in Southern Rural Life and Central Rural Life, in June 2016, and distributed to 38,500 box holders in Otago and Southland. It outlined some of the support and help that was available to the partners and children of farming adults, who were dealing with stress and other mental health issues. I talked to counsellors, Rural Women New Zealand and the Otago and Southland rural support trusts convenors. In addition, it emphasised mental illness was not something to be ashamed of, as well as reducing discrimination and stigma, and encouraging people to talk about their problems.

BRIEF CV
Yvonne O’Hara have been a reporter for Allied Press since 2001 and an agricultural reporter since 2004. She is interested in all things agricultural and horticultural, with a focus on reporting on rural mental health and health issues affecting the sector generally.

DESCRIPTION OF ENTRY

3/. Youth Hub. -dur 4'29"
The motivation for these stories springs from my own experiences of living in Christchurch. The trauma and pain of my neighbours in earthquake recovering Christchurch is all too obvious. Five years on, many of the affected are by no means in recovery. In common, the Mental Health agencies profiled are depicted as overwhelmed and under-funded. Stressed MH professionals plead for more resources. Nearly a year later, agencies portrayed have seen their resources grow in one way or another - mostly by increased Central Government funding. Perhaps these films helped.

BRIEF CV OF JOURNALIST
Gerard Smyth lives in Central Christchurch. Since the earthquakes of 2011 he has been producing films about the event and the recovery of those affected. This has included a feature film, 'When a City Falls', two television series 'Christchurch From the Streets,' and recently, this online publicly funded web-series 'Christchurch Dilemmas.' His increasing enquiry is of the well-being of the people. Six years later, it's the dispossessed whose wellbeing is challenged. Those who lost houses, lost jobs. Those families who lost their way. Those whose parents were not available to nurture their children. Those children whose parents lost their way. Has this left a Mental Health Crisis in Christchurch? "Living in the midst of this crisis and being affected by it in my own daily world, I have been challenged to find ways of taking a regional story to the ears of Central Government."
